ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A kit for diagnosing cardiovascular disease and increased levels of early atherosclerosis in a human involves assessing the presence and/or concentration of antibodies to platelet activating factor (PAF) in a sample of body fluid of the human.